

GENERAL CAMELL

The attached study involving Contract Personnel Regulations was due in your office on 25 February 1957 and it did make the deadline. However, I requested that it not be presented to you until I had been able to review it. I have now done this and think that the committee studying the problem has turned in an excellent report. I have requested that concurrences or comments be obtained from the heads of other major components, after which we will present the proposed Regulation and Handbook for your approval.

I suggest that you might save time at this juncture by reading only the "Major Changes" tab.
